Early morning fire heavily damages one of Albany's oldest houses; witnesses report seeing lightning strike

Thursday morning of last week, April 3, 2014, a spring storm swept through Clinton County and according to witness accounts, a lightning strike occurred at a home located at 402 Tennessee Rd., just across the street from Super City Mart.

Roeper said witnesses at Super City Mart reported seeing the lightning hit in the vicinity of the home at around 5:30 Thursday morning. At the time of the strike, witnesses said they thought it had struck the trees in the back of the house.

said, the same witnesses reported having seen smoke coming from the residence. "The lightning hit the flue on the house," Roeper said "The flue eventually fell and there was significant damage to the old part of the house."

unoccupied at the time of the lightning strike and no one was injured. Firefighters arrived on scene shortly after the call came in around 6:34 a.m., but by that time the blaze had already spread and significant damage to the home had already occurred.

The house is known as the Ballenger House and is believed to have been built before 1900, according to Albany attorney and local historian David Cross.

Originally it was the home of prominent Albany businessman and political figure F.M. (Milt) Ballenger.

Ballenger served as postmaster at both Albany and Savage from 1889 to 1899. He also served as Master Commissioner of Clinton Court from 1894-1903.

Ballenger was the father-in-law of two prominent attorneys in the area, Elza Bertram and Oscar B. Bertram.

Elza Bertram built what is known now as the Maple Hill Hospital as his private residence.

Bertram practiced law in Albany and was elected to the State Senate in 1909 and made an unsuccessful race as the Democratic nominee for Congress in 1910.

Upon the death of F.M. Ballenger, he willed the property to his sons, omitting his two daughters because they both had "noble husbands" as stated in his will, according to Cross.

The last full-time occupants of the home were Norton and Mary Duvall Ballenger.

The large, two-story house in south Albany known as the Ballenger house, was heavily damaged by flames last Thursday morning, following a lightning strike that was reported by witnesses across the street at Super City Mart.

The Albany Volunteer Fire Department was on the scene for over three hours. In the above photo, fire fighting crews can be seen working on both sides of the house after the blaze had been brought under control.

At right, one of the crews working on the north side of the home, checks for remaining blazes in the second story section of the structure.

The home is believed to be one of the oldest homes in Albany.

Council views new fire equipment, learns that new building will have fourth bay added

Albany Fire Department issues and a few ongoing water line projects took up most of the agenda at the Tuesday, April 1 regular meeting of Albany City Council. Five of six members were present for the brief regular session.

David Bowles of Monarch Engineers first gave the council a brief update on projects, noting that funding mechanism requests to state and federal agencies are now in place following the city's actions to seek funding for extending water lines along some areas of the 127 Bypass to hopefully encourage future business and/or industrial development.

The total project cost is estimated at a little over $1.9 million and Bowles warned the council of patience as far as funding requests, noting it may take "six months or more" for any official responses on requests for grants or low-interest loans.

The engineer also noted that the relocation of sewer and water lines along the intersec-

Hurt will face Williams in general election

A ruling issued in late March by a Franklin Circuit Court Judge has cleared the way for a former Cumberland County District Court Judge to run for the 40th Circuit Judge's seat this fall.

The ruling issued in Franklin Circuit Court clears the way for Steve Hurt to run for the Circuit Judge's seat against current 40th Circuit Judge David L. Williams, also of Burkesville.

The 40th Circuit includes Clinton County as well as Cumberland and Monroe County.

Hurt filed suit to challenge a relatively new Kentucky law that would have prevented him from seeking election to the bench at this time.

That law, which was designed to keep retired judges from "double-dipping" or earning retirement benefits and a salary at the same time, says that retired senior judges will not be eligible to seek any elected office for a period of five years.

In his ruling in favor of Hurt, Franklin Circuit Judge Phillip Shepherd called the new law unconstitutional, noting that it set conditions for running for public office that were beyond the conditions set forth in the Kentucky constitution.

Hurt served for several years as a district court judge in Cumberland County, and following his retirement from that position

Motions heard in two separate murder cases

Motions were heard and ruled on in two separate local murder cases last week by Clinton Circuit Judge David L. Williams.

One case involves a defendant who is already serving his sentence after making a plea agreement last year in circuit court following being originally charged with murder in a motor vehicle accident case.

Ira Boles Dyer, III was charged with murder and several other offenses including multiple counts of wanton endangerment following a two-vehicle crash on North 127 in Clinton County in the spring of 2012. That accident took the life of 79-year-old Ina Edwards and resulted in the injury of other occupants from both vehicles.

Following several delays throughout the court proceedings, a plea agreement was reached in the case last year prior to trial.

In a motion filed in Clinton Circuit Court last Thursday, April 3, Defense Attorney Brad Shuffett filed a motion on Dyer's be-

Vote TRAVIS DENNEY

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF

Citizens,
Take back your county from the thieves and narcotic drug pushers that plague this county. Clinton County is ranked number two in the state for prescription drug overdose deaths. Meth labs have been found in homes, businesses and woods where our children play. Dopers are throwing out their dirty needles on private property and along the roadways. If you are tired of living in fear, then VOTE for Travis Denney for Sheriff.
I will not take any monetary contributions for my campaign because I do not want anyone to think that they will influence me for special favors. Everyone will be treated fairly no matter who they are.
At no time will I put up with corruption in my department. I believe in common sense policing. As sheriff I will take responsibility for everything that happens or fails to happen on my watch.
If you are ready for a positive change, then VOTE for Travis Denney. Battle Tested and Battle Proven! Like me on Facebook Travis Denney for Sheriff.

Thank you,
Travis Denney

"The Little Girl Was a Big Soul Winner"

Let's Go Soul Winning

By the late Dr. Jack Hyles

Many years ago when I began preaching, I asked God to give me a soul winning church with individual soul winners scattered abroad everywhere preaching His Word. How gracious He has been through the years to give me my heart's desire in this matter. How I thank Him for the many dear people at First Baptist Church of Hammond who love the souls of men. Occasionally one of them has an experience that is so blessed I feel I must share it with the readers of this column.

The story "Willow" comes from one of our beginner teachers, Mrs. Pamela Jo Overstreet:

"Brother Hyles, I thought that you might be interested in a wonderful blessing I received in this month of February.

"I am a teacher in Beginner IB. Several weeks ago after the regular Bible story, a little girl named Marline came up to Mrs. Rice (the departmental superintendent) and told her she wanted to have Jesus in her heart. Mrs. Rice called me over and allowed me the privilege of leading Marline to the Lord. The very next Sunday Marline came up to me and asked me if I would tell her friend about Jesus. I was overwhelmed with Marline's eagerness to tell others about Jesus. I said, 'Yes, I will tell your friend about Jesus,' and asked where her little friend was. She then told me that her friend was an elderly blind man across the street from where she lived. She had told her friend (the elderly blind man) that she had just been saved and that she now had Jesus in her heart. While he and Marline were talking, he mentioned the he too would like to have Jesus in his heart and asked if someone from the church would come and tell him about Jesus.

"When she told me this, I said I would go and see her friend and that I would have to get another girl to go with me who was more experienced than I. I contacted Doris Hunniford and she agreed to go with me to see Mr. Osterman, the elderly blind man and the friend of the little girl. We went to the house and had a very enjoyable talk with Mr. Osterman and his brother. Before we left they both had made a profession of faith. I have had Mr. Osterman and his brother on my heart ever since we were there. So, last night my husband and I went to see them and asked them to be our guests for Sunday school and church this Sunday. I am so thankful that the Lord allowed this wonderful blessing to come my way. I hope this story thrilled your soul as much as it did mine. In Christ, Pamela Jo Overstreet."

There are several things about this story that are blessed. First, isn't it wonderful that this little girl felt she could go to her superintendent and ask her about Jesus! Then, isn't it wonderful that she proved the sincerity of her salvation by going to an older man and telling him that she was saved! Then, isn't it wonderful that her witness has the power of the Spirit with it that convicted this blind man! Then, isn't it wonderful that there was someone, yes, even a lady, who could tell the man how to be saved! Then, isn't it wonderful that God had a brother there ready to be saved also! Then, isn't it wonderful that Jesus died on the cross to make possible this blessed salvation!

Why not join the little beginner girl and go soul winning this week.

Leading the way to better Parkinson's Disease Care.

“It was all worth it.”

Everybody knows that it's important for the back of your hair to look as good as the front. But one day, when Betty King-Hensley was checking out her hairdo, she noticed the mirror was shaking. At first, she was puzzled by the fact that her left hand didn't seem to be able to hold the mirror – or anything else – steady. But when the trembling did not go away, she became concerned.

Betty was diagnosed with Parkinson's disease.

Parkinson's disease (PD) is motor system disorder. While studies have shown patients with PD lose dopamine-producing brain cells, the causes of the disease remain unknown. It just seems to happen.

After diagnosis, Betty has maintained a positive attitude, which has undoubtedly made a difference in her ability to cope with the disease. She said, “I didn't get down and depressed about it. Things can always be worse.”

Over time, however, Betty's tremors become more intense, even though she was on medications. She said, “I couldn't even hold a cup of coffee. It was like my left hand was waving at you all the time.”

Then, Betty recalled a Dine with the Docs presentation on Deep Brain Stimulation (DBS) she had attended several years earlier. DBS is an amazing surgery performed by neurosurgeons Amr

El-Nagger, MD, and Magdy El-Kalliny, MD., at Lake Cumberland Regional Hospital. It is designed to help control tremors and give PD patients a better quality of life. At the meeting, several DBS patients explained how the surgery had helped them.

“I thought, if it worked for them, it could work for me,” Betty said. So, she contacted Dr. El-Naggar.

Although it took a long time to work up her nerve to try DBS, Betty says that when it came time for the procedure, she wasn't scared at all. Afterwards, she declares,

“It was all worth it.”

While her tremors are gone, Betty continues to work with her neurologist, Jose Cardenas, MD, to manage the disease. Her quality of life has improved, and she is enjoying all the things she loves: going to church, having dinner with friends, spending time with her children and grandchildren, reading, and even preparing some of her favorite dishes – pinto beans, cornbread and banana pudding. She has even started attending Parkinson's Disease Support Group* meetings to help others and to share their experiences.

Now Betty can enjoy a cup of coffee without spilling a drop of it. And, you can be certain that the back of her hair looks fine, because she can hold the mirror steady to make sure it does.

WAYNE CO. OUTLOOK Monticello

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department is continuing its search for an elderly man who has not been seen in more than a month. They are actively searching for any leads into the disappearance of Marshall Kay Alley, 69, who was last seen in the town area on February 21.

Sheriff Charlie Boston said there had been reports circulating in the community that Alley had been found, but he said those reports are false.

He noted that his department continues to search for Alley in every conceivable location, noting that they have been looking in fields, caves and any other areas where he might be.

Boston said deputies have talked with family members and others who had contact with Alley, and according to all the information they have received, he was last seen on February 21. That was the date that Alley, who had been in the Wayne County Detention Center for violating terms of a domestic violence order, had been released from the facility.

A deputy jailer gave Alley a ride to the corner of Walnut and Huffaker Street, since he had a son who lived in that area.

The sheriff's department became aware that Alley was missing in early March, when a grandson became concerned when he was unable to reach his grandfather.

Boston said that his department has received some tips regarding Alley. He encouraged anyone with information to call the sheriff's department at (606) 348-5416.

Hospice of Lake Cumberland learned recently that solicitors were using the name of the organization to try to collect money in this area.

leased on Wednesday, March 26, a person went door-to-door throughout neighborhoods in Wayne County claiming to work for the non-profit organization.

Hospice of Lake Cumberland officials said that this person is not an employee, and this is not a legitimate fund raising effort.

"It is disappointing to think that someone is abusing our name and cause," said Executive Director Euretha McQueary. "Hospice of Lake Cumberland is appreciative of every donation large or small. These donations are very important to helping our families with the many challenges they may be facing. Because of the generosity of this community, our organization does not and will not solicit monetary donations door-to-door."

Individuals such as these try to take advantage of people's generosity.

Not only does this abuse cost an individual money, it also diverts much needed donations away from legitimate charities and causes.

Anyone who has been approached by someone falsely representing Hospice of Lake Cumberland should contact local authorities.

TIMES JOURNAL Russell Springs

The University of Kentucky's victory of the University of Louisville two weeks ago Friday night in the Sweet 16 NCAA basketball tournament had many folks jubilant throughout the country, some say a little too much in the case of what greeted drivers through the Jamestown Square on Saturday morning.

Overnight, one overzealous reveler decided to deck out the Doughboy Mounument in UK gear, and while some didn't think much of it, others were disturbed at the lack of respect for the symbol and what it meant to commemorate those Russell Countians who have died protecting our country.

The Jamestown Police Department said they are looking into it but don't have any clear leads at this time. If you have any tips call the department at 270-343-3300.

Jamestown Pharmacy was burglarized Sunday morning, March 30 resulting in the loss of some 20,000 pills valued at over $90,000.

After receiving a call of an active alarm at 6:38 Sunday morning, Jamestown Police Office Tracy Irvin arrived on the scene to find the locking mechanism to the north side entrance lying in the parking lot and the alarm still sounding.

Once backup from the Russell County Sheriff's Department and Russell Springs Police Department arrived they entered the building to find the pharmacy ransacked.

Irvin estimated the burglars were in and out of the pharmacy in about one minute and 40 seconds.

Videos of the scene shows two subjects wearing masks and gloves and carrying totes to carry their haul, Irvin said.

The vehicle they were driving was as a white Chrysler 300 with chrome mirrors, wheels, molding and door handles.

Irvin said that the vehicle had been spotted the night before in Jamestown and it and the suspects fits similar descriptions of that suspected used in drugstore burglaries in Knox County and other towns as well as Tennessee and surrounding states.

Authorities estimate that one suspect was between 5' 9" and 5' 11" and the other being between 6' 3" and 6' 6." One suspect was wearing an "OD" (military green) jacket, possibly by the maker Carhartt.

If anyone saw the vehicle or suspects in question Saturday or Sunday, you're asked to contact the Jamestown Police Department at 270-343-3300. A reward is being offered for information leading to the apprehension and arrest of the suspects.

Two lawsuits filed in Russell Circuit Court on Friday, March 28 seek resolution in the case of A & S Proteins, an animal rendering plant located in a residential area approximately one-half mile from Russell Springs Elementary.

The two suits are on behalf of residents near the facility and by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture.

One of the suits filed represents 25 residents whose names are located within a distance of a plant said to be injured by A & S by operating "its facility in a manner that causes it to release noxious odors that have a direct impact on plaintiff's health and well-being, causing injury to the plaintiffs and their properties, including medical injuries, mental stress, and emotional injuries."

The suit also claims, "The operation of the facility has also caused an increase of flies, rodents, other insects and animals, and noise around the facility, and has resulted in the runoff of pollutants from the facility and from the piles of carcasses and offal around the facility."

"Plaintiffs have witnessed neighborhood dogs carrying parts of the animals, like hooves, into their yards and the community. Additionally, some plaintiffs' water needs are met by the use of private wells which are being adversely impacted by runoff from the facility," the suit reads.

The suit brought by representatives of the residence claim private nuisance, trespass, negligence, battery, intentional and negligent infliction of emotional distress, with the claim that A & S acted with oppression and malice toward the plaintiffs resulting in the mentioned physical and mental distress as well as adversely affecting property values.

The suit also asks the court to consider counsel's request that the court designate the action as a class action lawsuit, claiming that they have been asked to represent an additional 132 persons living within the area adversely impacted by the defendants. In all, the suit says there may be as many as 300 individuals in the "punitive suit."

The suit names Mark Antle and Logan Antle as owner and operator of A & S Livestock and A & S Proteins, and Jerome Salyers as President of A & S Proteins.

Particular facts outlined by the suit are Jerome Salyers purchased said property on March 15, 2013 and on or about January 27, 2014 the rendering plant commenced operations, collecting carcasses, parts and scraps of dead animals as well as grease they have collected and through rendering operations produce proteins and grease for use in animal feed and makeup corporations.

The suit claims that the facility has received several citations from the Kentucky Division of Water and the Kentucky Division of Air Quality for lack of permits and violation of Kentucky's "ambient air quality standards for odor," as well as a failure to have a Groundwater Protection Plan.

The suit seeks a declaration of rights declaring the storage of dead animals and offal, operation of the rendering facility are in violation of Kentucky and Federal statutes and regulations and that A & S must cease all operations until such time they are in full compliance.

The suit brought by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture claims violation of Kentucky Revised Statutes (KRS) 263, including but not limited to KRS 263.090.

KRS 263.090 has to do with the disposal of animals and reads: 263.090 Disposal methods, requirements.

The following requirements shall be observed in the disposal of the bodies of the dead animals, poultry, fish or parts thereof, or offal and by-products of slaughtered animals:

(1) All bodies of parts thereof and excrements therefrom shall be processed or disposed of within forty-eight (48) hours after being delivered to the plant.

(2) Cooking vats or tanks shall be airtight, except proper escapes for live steam.

(3) Steam shall be so dispensed of as not to cause an unnecessary nuisance.

(4) The skinning and dismembering of bodies or parts of bodies shall be done within the building.

(5) No uncooked bodies or parts thereof shall be fed to any livestock. This does not prohibit the sale of such products for pet food, or for dogs, cats and animals.

(6) Such parts of bodies as are not entirely consumed by cooking or burning shall be buried or disposed of to approved license holder.

The Department of Agriculture claims supervisory authority over the plant, but in a letter from law firm Greenebaum Doll, LLC to the Kentucky Department of Agriculture they make the claim that the KRS statute in question specifically says "does not apply to: (1) the premises or the rendering operations or the premises of an establishment operating under United States government inspection," and tha A & S operates under the oversight and regulations of the Food and Drug Administration, a federal government agency.

The KDA claims that A & S applied for a license to operate a rendering plant through them and was subsequently issued one in 2009.

The suit asks that KDA be found unlawfully authorized to license, inspect and suspend operations at the facility, that the facility be found a nuisance and operations be permanently ceased at the facility.

RUSSELL COUNTY NEWS-REGISTER Russell Springs

Guilty...that was the plea entered by Christopher Allman on all charges against him stemming from the June 14, 2013 murder of Sarah Roberts Hart.

Included in the charges read to Allman in Russell Circuit Thursday morning April 3, there were a total of seven counts: murder, 1st degree rape, fetal homicide, kidnapping, 1st degree robbery, tampering with physical evidence and two counts of persistent felony offender 2nd degree.

Formal sentencing is scheduled for May 6, but in the plea agreement Allman agreed to the understanding he will likely receive life without the possibility of parole, insuring he spends the remaining years in prison.

Hart, 31, was jogging with her sister in the early morning hours on Hwy. 127 near Fruit of the Loom when she turned back to walk to her car, expressing not feeling well.

She was accosted by Allman who drug her from the sidewalk and into a clump of trees and shrubs across the Lake Cumberland Community Action Agency, where he raped, robbed and strangled her using a vine. Allman claimed to have robbery as motivation, but has acknowledged that the murder of Hart was intentional.

Hart was approximately three months pregnant at the time with what would have been her fourth child with husband Ryan Hart.

Hart had been missing from about 5:30 a.m. and through an exhaustive search by friends, family and concerned citizens, her body was found at 11:14 a.m.

Allman was arrested and charged initially 12 hours from the time of the murder by Kentucky State Police investigators Lt. Eric Wolford and Det. B.J. Burton.

Commonwealth Attorney and prosecutor in the case, Matthew Leveridge, said he was pleased with the outcome.

"As far as the process, we've been fortunate today. This case has been moved faster than most death penalty cases in Kentucky," Leveridge said.

"We were able to get a trial date in two years. Typically you're going to be looking at four to five years on a trial date."

If a plea deal had not been reached a trial date and jury selection was scheduled for April 18, and Leveridge said he understood Allman's defense would have requested another venue other than Russell County.

Leveridge said his office worked close with the family on the possibility of a plea deal, and that a jury imposed death sentence could take 30 years or more for the sentence to be carried out.

"In this case they decided that, knowing that he would never get out of prison, that he will die in prison and he will spend the rest of his life behind bars for the horrible things he did to Sarah and her family," Leveridge said, weighed against the emotional impact years of appeals and continued court dates of a death sentence trial was a factor in the family accepting a plea deal on behalf of Allman.

Fruit of the Loom announced Thursday, April 3 that they will be closing operations in Russell County resulting in the loss of over 600 jobs, $208,000 in payroll taxes for the city of Jamestown, $165,000 in occupational taxes for the county and $1.6 million a year in water and sewer revenue for Jamestown.

Plant Manager Jeff wiles released this statement to the press:

"Fruit of the Loom, Inc. announced today the permanent closure of the Jamestown, Kentucky facility as part of the company's ongoing efforts to align its global supply chain to allow the company to leverage existing investments and meet customer requirements more timely and cost effectively. The Jamestown facility will transition to our existing textile facilities in Honduras. Approximately 601 employees are affected by this announcement. The phase down is expected to begin in or around June 8, 2014 and be completed by December 31, 2014."

"This decision is in no way a reflection on the dedication and efforts of the employees in our Jamestown facility, but is a result of a competitive global business environment," said Tony Pelaski, Executive Vice-President and Chief Operating Officer.

Employees affected by this reduction will be given a 60-day notice in accordance with the Workers Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act (WARN).

State and local officials have been notified to provide any available assistance.

Jamestown Mayor Jerry Lawless made this public statement:

"In response to the announcement from Fruit of the Loom that it plans to close their Jamestown facility by the end of the year comes as a shock to the City of Jamestown as it does to everyone else. The city had no clue that this announcement was going to be made. Let's remember that these decisions aren't made on a local level but by the people in their corporate offices. With that being said let's not criticize the local folks working at FOTL, it is their jobs that are being phased out, not corporate positions. It is a blow to our community that (we) will overcome as long as we work together.

Judge-Executive Gary Robertson was away on county business in Frankfort but said that he had not gotten any indication previously of the plant closing and that he just had a meeting with Gov. Steve Beshear who was also unaware of the pending closure.

Sports in Kentucky

by Bob Watkins

'We live our lives by intervals' and Kentucky gave Big Blue fans 29 more Tribute time for Kentucky's basketball team? Yes.

Winningest college basketball program in America is still Kentucky.

Nice run, fellas. Last six thunder runs were breath-taking gorgeous, good as it gets. Crowd following to Dallas was confirmation. But for a Kevin Ollie coaching gem UConn would be doing the what if routine today.

Shining moments? I could be the one human on Planet Basketball to say today let's skip the if-onlys and just say lots of Moms went to bed happy 29 nights this winter. Never mind the other 11. And yes, the last one was tough.

So, from the throng of fair-minded and reasonable Kentuckians in Big Blue Nation, along with the constituency John Calipari calls crazy, thank you.

But let's be real too. Whatever love affair there was it came late. Well after the odious bunker talk: "it's us against the world, guys."

From Big Blue Madness in, we all knew the drill. Win, win, beat UofL, sell some tee-shirts, let Cal do the talking, win s'more, then get the hell out of here for the NBA.

Tribute:

We live our lives by intervals, don't we?

Moments of joy, days of contentment, seasons of wellness.

Grow certain we are wise and know enough,

In the end, one at a time, it's how we handled intervals

Who we left smiling all.

Kentucky players handled the intervals well.

Thanks, guys. See you on television.

HARRISON HEROICS

"It's going to be a great story," Aaron Harrison said a month ago in Columbia, South Carolina, moments after the lowest point in Kentucky's winter of discontent. The Wildcats seemed to shrug their shoulders after having had surrendered to Frank Martin's Gamecocks. Nobody was happy, in particular citizenry of Big Blue Nation who pay their taxes in love, devotion in tee-shirts, face paint and expect in return more than they were getting.

Jayden Albertson killed his first turkey Saturday, April 4, while hunting with his dad. The turkey had a nine inch beard and one and a quarter inch spurs.

The Clinton County Cross Country 2nd annual 5K Bulldog Run, and 5K Fun Walk will challenge your physical and mental fitness. All participants will receive a tee-shirt. Awards will be given to the top finishers in each age group for the Still, 19-year-old Harrison's calm assessment then, and dramatics to follow, reminded me of a line from the movie Tombstone. Glassy-eyed Doc Holiday looks into Johnny Ringo's face and remarks: "I dunno darlin', there's just something about im..."

There's just something about young Harrison. In a month's time his "It's going to be a great story," premonition, prophesy, whatever, became precisely that. In consecutive games his 3-pointers at the end to send Louisville, Michigan and Wisconsin to land of Wait'll next year!

✓ Seven words in Columbia, South Carolina five weeks ago morphed into Clark Kent stepping into and out of a phone box. Kentucky's transitional run to the pinnacle of Planet Basketball has been, well, "a great story."

✓ Fascinating too: The sweet innocence of youth, a teenager able to steel up, have nerve to step up to a game-decider shot not once, but three times. All while under the collective hot breath of a gazillion screaming human beings and television audience pouring down on him.

Imagine: 10 ... 9 ... 8 ... 7 ... 6 seconds. What would you have done?

Kentucky hoops, 2013-14, been a great story down the stretch. An ebb-and-flow drama with heroes and villains, ups, downs all wrapped into, "we'll be back for the final seconds after these commercial messages" big finish.

Apparently, one teenager knew how it would be all the time. Maybe he wrote the script. Still, no Hollywood producer would buy it.

All of which takes me back to Tombstone.

"I dunno, darlin'," there's just something about "im," this Aaron Harrison.

CAREFUL WHAT YOU WISH FOR

Clamoring continues to pay college players (term student-athlete is passe'). ... form a players union! ... and, NCAA should dole out its billions in television revenue to the workers.

Gee, isn't that socialism?

On one hand, for television's talking heads – be careful what you wish for.

Before Charles Barkley could say "what's in your wallet?" college administrators would hire a Pay Scale Board and team of arbitrators.

Hypothetical test case: Should Breanna Stewart at UConn be paid same or more than Julius Randle at Kentucky? Must be a hearing, arguments, decisions, appeals and, where money is involved, discontent all round.

Be careful what you wish for.

On the other hand, amid the noise for justice for players, all is quiet on the ball coach front. Highest paid coach in college hoops 2013-14, according to USA Today, is Mike Krzyzewski at Duke. Bilas's old boss.

Coach K raked in $9,682,032, according to the newspaper. Next is Rick Pitino at Louisville, $5,758,338 a year. John Calipari at Kentucky, Bill Self of Kansas and Billy Donovan of Florida are in the 4-5 million dollars-a-year club.

Ball coach pay has soared right alongside corporate NCAA's warehouse of money. While Bilas and others rant about pay-for-play in college, where's the clamor for a cap on coach pay?

Footnote: Looking ahead, status quo. Recruiting experts say Krzyzewski has the number one recruiting class for 2014-15, Calipari's next wave of players at Kentucky is second.

READERS (RIGHT) WRITE

"Richard Pitino's Minnesota team won the NIT ... with Tubby Smith's players, right? All those UK fans for all those years who said Tubby Smith won the (1998) NCAA Tournament with Rick Pitino's players ... what goes around comes around."

PARTING SHOT

Arrangements for the UK team's homecoming celebration on Tuesday, included an athletic department press release. Ironical and sad reminder how athletics at Kentucky are corporate captives..

To wit: "Other than IMG rightsholder, there may not be any live telecast, radio broadcast or internet streaming originating from inside Rupp Arena until 4:30 p.m. or the IMG/WKYT telecast has concluded, whichever is later."

And so it goes.

Lance Gibson killed this turkey while hunting with his dad. It weighed 22 pounds with a 10 and a half inch beard and one and a quarter inch spurs.

Landon Garner killed this turkey weighing 23 pounds with a 10 inch beard and one and a quarter inch spurs while hunting with Lucas Abner during the youth season last weekend.

The Clinton County High School Cheerleaders competed in the WSA Nationals on March 29 and 30 in Destin, Florida. The Bulldog Cheerleaders picked up first place out of 15 high school teams. Clinton County scored a 9.4 total score to pick up first place honors.

Jase Boils, left, and Jonathan Cook recently competed in the Archery Shooter's Association Pro/Am March 28-30 in Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Boils competed in the High School Pins division and placed second with a total score of 34 up. Cook finished third in the Bow Novice division and also shot 34 up.

TURNOVERS

by Alan B. Gibson

March Madness - in Kentucky it came to a heartbreaking end

College hoops came to a screeching halt Monday night, and for the Big Blue Nation, it was a heartbreaking end with our CATS running into a free-throw wall that cost us the hanging of our ninth banner in Rupp.

Still, despite a 60-54 loss to the Huskies of UCONN - we've got to be pretty thankful that the Cats were even in the game.

A month ago, most of us were ready to hang the season up, and some analysts were even mentioning the NIT at one point - although that was a little far-fetched and more sarcastic than anything.

Then came the "tweak" that Coach Cal found, and suddenly our Childcats started looking more and more like the group we were expecting to see last November when the supposed No. 1 recruiting class in the nation laced up their shoes and put on the blue and white.

And the run began. Two SEC tourney wins and a down to the wire finish against the top rated team in the nation that saw the Florida Gators scrambling in the SEC championship game to squeak out a one point win.

Five more NCAA Tournament wins, and suddenly we're playing in the last game of the season.

Sans some horrific free throw shooting by the Cats, and it just don't get any better than what we had in March and these first seven days of April.

I've caught a lot of grief from Louisville Cardinal haters who just can't understand the dual loyalty at my house for our two teams from Kentucky, especially when they head down my driveway and view our flagpole with the 2011 UK Championship flag flying underneath the 2012 UL Championship flag (both underneath Old Glory, of course).

Hey, I'm a true basketball fan from Kentucky and right now, I'm proud of my CATS and my Cards, and I'm looking for a UK 2014 NCAA Runner-up flag as soon as the screen printers put them out. Blue goes back on top this spring.

All in all, from high school to college hoops - it's been one of the best years - if not the best year - from top to bottom that I can remember enjoying.

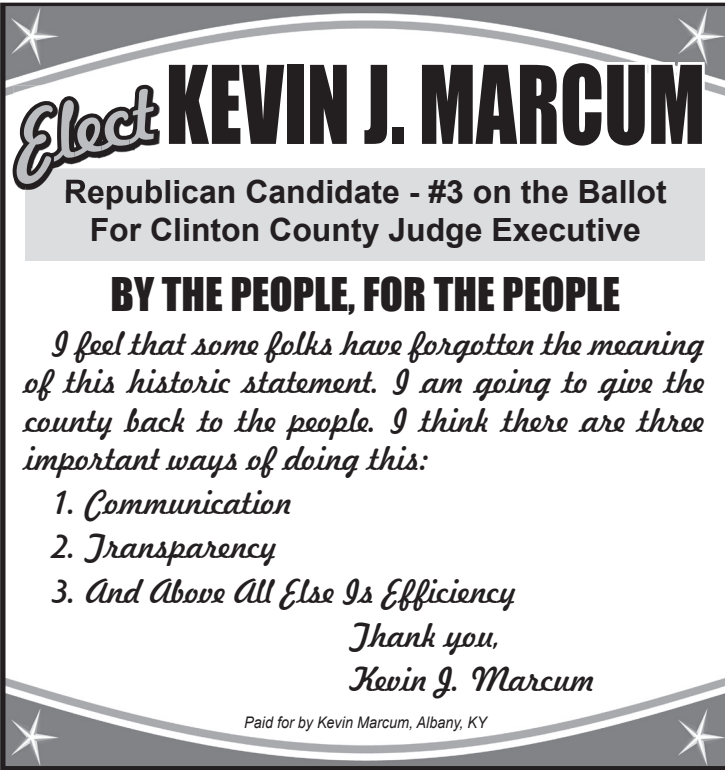

So when do we start this again?

March Madness is finally over in Kentucky - we can get back to normal (my yard looks terrible).

Clinton Circuit Court session held

A term of Clinton Circuit Court was held last Thursday, April 3 with Circuit Judge David L. Williams presiding over several cases.

The following are cases in which some type of resolutions were made, trial dates set or orders issued:

* Sentencing was held in the case of Commonwealth vs. Cindy Gail Brummett, pursuant to a motion to revoke pretrial diversion on March 6.

On May 6, 2013 the defendant entered a plea of guilty to possession of a controlled substance first degree and received a two-year sentence, pretrial diverted for two years.

The court determined she had violated the terms and conditions of pretrial diversion, revoked same and sentenced her to serve the balance of the original sentence and receive credit for time served.

* During a pretrial conference, a plea agreement was reached in the case of Commonwealth vs. Billy Jay Craig.

The Commonwealth recommended dismissing charges of failure to use a seatbelt, driving on a suspended license, failure to maintain insurance, possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of marijuana, as well as possession of drug paraphernalia in a separate indictment.

Upon a plea of guilty to possession of a controlled substance first degree, the defendant would receive a three-year sentence and upon a plea of guilty to one count of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence would pay a $200 fine and upon a plea of possession of a controlled substance first degree in another indictment, would receive a three-year sentence, to run concurrent for three years. He would serve 60 days with the balance probated with supervision.

The defendant also wishes to enter the Clinton County Drug Court Program.

Final sentencing is scheduled for May 1.

* During a pretrial conference, a plea agreement was reached in the case of Commonwealth vs. Tony Lowhorn.

The Commonwealth recommended dismissing the charge of criminal trespass third degree and upon a plea of guilty to theft by unlawful taking the defendant would receive a five-year sentence, probated for five years with supervision and pay restitution in the amount of $774.99.

Final sentencing is scheduled for May 1.

* During a pretrial conference, a plea agreement was reached in the case of Commonwealth vs. Bobby Wayne Pillar.

The Commonwealth recommended the charge of escape first degree be amended to second degree and upon a plea of guilty to the lesser charge, the defendant would receive a five-year sentence, probated for five years with supervision and receive credit for time served and be assessed for the Clinton County Drug Court Program.

Final sentencing is scheduled for May 1.

* During a revocation hearing, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Billy G. Brown, charged with possession of a controlled substance, possession of a meth precursor and possession of methamphetamine, the court determined the defendant had violated the terms of his pretrial diversion and revoked same.

Final sentencing is scheduled for May 1.

* During a revocation hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Michael Stearns, charged with possession of a controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia, the court determined the defendant had violated the terms of his pretrial diversion and revoked same.

Final sentencing is scheduled for May 1.

* During a revocation hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Nathan M. Gray, charged with possession of a controlled substance and possession of methamphetamine, in lieu of revocation, the defendant is to serve 90 days in jail with the case to be reviewed on September 11.

* During a revocation hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Charlie Kay York, charged with burglary and two counts of persistent felony offender second degree, the court noted the defendant had "absconded" and there is an active warrant for his arrest.

* During a revocation hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Jeffrey D. Cooper, charged with two counts of forgery and persistent felony offender second degree, the defendant did not appear and shall be placed in NCIC.

* During a revocation hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Gloria Brumley, charged with fourth degree assault, criminal mischief (two counts), wanton endangerment (two counts), five counts of terroristic threatening and two counts of unlawful transaction with a minor, the defendant did not appear. She has already been placed in NCIC.

* During a review in the case of Commonwealth vs. Richard Luttrell, charged with burglary, assault and persistent felony offender, the defendant did not appear and is to be placed in NCIC.

* During motion hour, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Aimee Anddree, charged with two counts of custodial interference, the case was dismissed without prejudice.

* During a hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Billy Neal, charged with flagrant nonsupport, the Commonwealth withdrew its motion to revoke.

* During a preliminary hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Matthew Denney, charged with theft by unlawful taking, the commonwealth withdrew its motion to revoke.

* Arraignment was conducted in the case of Commonwealth vs. Joshua Crawford, charged with public intoxication, assault fourth degree (two counts), wanton endangerment and persistent felony offender second degree.

The defendant entered a plea of not guilty. The court set a pretrial conference for June 12 and a trial date for July 30.

* Arraignment was conducted in the case of Commonwealth vs. Lindsay Angela Hanna, charged with possession of a controlled substance, drug paraphernalia, carrying a concealed deadly weapon and possession of a defaced firearm.

The defendant entered a plea of not guilty. The court scheduled a pretrial conference for June 12 and a trial date for July 30.

* In the case of Commonwealth vs. Ronald D. Daniel, charged with possession of a controlled substance, drug paraphernalia, failure to wear a seat belt and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence, sentencing was continued until May 1.

* During a pretrial conference in the case of Commonwealth vs. Ricky Lee Duvall, charged with possession of a controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia, the trial date of May 20 was continued with a pretrial conference scheduled for July 10.

A few other cases were on the docket for last Thursday but were continued for various reasons.

Grand Jury indicts four

The Clinton County Grand Jury had another light session last Thursday, handing down four indictments naming three individuals. The following true bills were handed down in open Circuit Court on April 3.

* The alleged offenses of burglary third degree and assault fourth degree against Kyle Matthews, when on or about February 25, the defendant remained unlawfully in a residence and caused physical injury to another.

* The alleged offense of flagrant nonsupport against Randall S. Church, when on or about May 9, 2013 through April 3, 2014, defendant failed to provide support for his minor child or children, being in arrears by $6,261.40.

* The alleged offense of flagrant nonsupport against Adam Barnes, when on or about February 13, 2013 through April 3,

2014, defendant failed to pay support for his minor child or children, having being in arrears by $1,650.00

(Editor's Note: An indictment is a statement of probable cause to believe an offense has been committed and further court proceedings are warranted. Those individuals named in an indictment are presumed innocent unless proven guilty in court.)

Aquaculture/pond management workshops coming to central Kentucky

By Katie Pratt
With more than 200,000 ponds in Kentucky, the state has many aquatic systems that need proper management. To help landowners do this, the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service and Kentucky State University are hosting two aquaculture programs in Central Kentucky.
An aquatic plant- and algae-control training program will take place from 10 a.m. EDT to 4 p.m. April 11 at the Franklin County office of the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service.

Forrest Wynne, William Wurts and Bob Durborow are presenters. All are KSU extension specialists for aquaculture. Discussion topics will include aquatic plant and algae identification, methods of control, and herbicide and algicide use with a special emphasis on proper chemical selection, application techniques, applicator safety and record keeping.

Continuing education units for pesticide applicators are available including three specific hours in category 5 and two general hours in categories 10 and 12.

Wurts, Wynne and Durborow will present a second workshop on pond management from 8:30 a.m. EDT until noon April 12 at the Franklin County Extension Office.

"The workshop will provide a broad prospective about managing ponds for farm use and recreational fishing as well as small-scale and recreational aquaculture," Wurts said.

Both the workshop and training are free and open to the public. Preregistration is not required, but to ensure they receive workshop materials, potential attendees should contact either Wurts at 270-365-7541, ext. 200 or wwurts@uky.edu, Wynne at 270-247-2334 or fwynne@email.uky.edu or Keenan Bishop at 502-695-9035 or kbishop@uky.edu.

Da mule ride with my 'other Grandpa'

by Forest Harvey

My father, Fred Freeman Harvey, was the second child born to Abner and Verdia Lee Harvey. He was born October 28, 1903 in Adair County and died March 14, 1948 in Clinton County. He was a minister and we lived in several different communities in the area.

In the summer of 1940 my family of four planned a trip to visit my Grandparents. We would be coming to Adair County from Monticello Kentucky. What a trip for my sister and myself! We were going to spend the night and part of the next day.

When we arrived we all exchanged the hugs and kisses. Before you knew it the talk of supper came up. There was not enough time to kill and cook a chicken so Grandma gave Grandpa the assignment of going to the grocery store. Of course he could not go without me.

Grandpa went to the barn and put the bridle and saddle on old Kate to ready her for our trip. Grandpa wore his straw hat. I sat behind the saddle and held on to it for the trip. Grandpa got up in the saddle and we were on our way clippy-clop, clippy clop, clippy clapping along.

We traveled two miles on a dirt road until we came to the main road which was Route 61. It ran from Columbia through Sparksville and Breeding to Burkesville. If I remember correctly it was Coomers Country Store and later Bakers Store. I was never as high up in my life as I was while behind my Grandpa. It was an experience that I can remember 74 years later. We went through a big mud hole and I did not want to fall off in it.

At the store Grandpa bought two cans of salmon and a pack of chew gum. Of course, I had to share the gum with my sister Vernita. I learned a new lesson that day...never chew gum and ride on a mule....I bit my lip.

The trip home was a lot longer than the trip TO the store.

When we got back home he drew us a cold bucket of water from his drilled well. I can still hear the bailer filling with water. Grandpa told me that "you do not want to let it down too far because it will make the water sandy". Kate, Grandpa and I all got a cool drink. But I would do it all over again to spend quality time with my Grandpa. Supper was not too bad either. Salmon cakes, mashed potatoes and gravy, green beans and knee high biscuits, apple pie and a glass of water.

That night I slept upstairs in the attic on a straw bed mattress. That was my first experience to do that. Breakfast came early. I can still smell the coffee and biscuits. Of course my sister and I had milk.

It made us sad when we had to leave to go home.

Legislative Update

by Kentucky Senator
Sara Beth Gregory
16th Senatorial District

Budget bill passes, now in the hands of the Governor

By Sara Beth Gregory, 16th District Senator

After working literally through the night, conference committee members were able to reach an agreement on the executive, legislative, and judicial branch budgets. On Monday, March 31, these budget bills were passed by both the House and Senate. By passing these bills on schedule, we were able to preserve our ability to override any potential vetoes by the Governor.

I am proud of the efforts that went into passing a new two-year budget for the Commonwealth that is more fiscally responsible than the original budget proposal. The final budget borrows less money and uses less one-time money to pay recurring expenses than the proposals from the Governor and House. That means both the debt service ratio and structural imbalance are lower.

One of the top priorities in this budget is giving all Kentucky students the opportunity for quality education. The final budget supports Kentucky's education efforts from preschool to college. The plan will expand the state's preschool program in 2016, increase K-12 per-pupil (SEEK) funding, and add nearly $10 million for education technology.

The final budget also retained some items that had been included by the Senate, including additional funding for Career and Technical Education to fill vacant teaching positions at vocational schools throughout the state. Also retained were increased funding for college scholarships through the Kentucky Tuition Grants (KTG) and the College Access Program (CAP). This is good news for both students and higher education institutions like Lindsey Wilson College and Campbellsville University in the district I represent.

While some state agencies and programs will face cuts up to five percent in the next biennium, critical areas like Medicaid are protected from reductions. Also, funding for child care subsidies for low-income families will be restored.

The budget also includes pay raises for state employees for the first time since 2008, most of whom are taking home less now than several years ago due to increased insurance cost. The final budget includes raises for public school teachers and judicial branch employees as well.

I received many messages, especially from public library supporters, concerned about a proposal by the Governor that would have required libraries, health departments, and other special taxing districts to pay significant amounts to PVAs for tax collection. I'm pleased to say this was avoided in the final budget by giving some additional general fund support to PVAs instead of placing the entire burden on special districts.

This budget also fully funds the Kentucky Employee Retirement System's Actuarially Recommended Contribution (ARC), and provides $372.3 million in FY15 and $380.5 million in FY16 for the Kentucky Teachers' Retirement System employer match for qualified local school district employees.

We also made sure to include language provisions to ensure taxpayer dollars are used responsibly. For example, the budget specifies that no general fund dollars may be used for the implementation of the Affordable Care Act (ACA), also known as Obamacare, which has been done without legislative approval with the promise it would be paid for by federal funds. Likewise, funds received as a result of the ACA may not be used to permanently expand or create programs.

The budget and many other bills are now in the hands of the Governor, who must choose whether to sign or veto the measures. The Governor has the authority on budget bills to line-item veto specific provisions if he chooses to do so. When the General Assembly returns to Frankfort on April 14 for the final two days of the session, any vetoes may be overridden by a majority vote of both the House and Senate.

Other legislation awaits final action, including most significantly, the new road plan and transportation budget for the Commonwealth. The road plan is currently being discussed in conference committee as members seek to agree on the infrastructure priorities for the state.

As always, I invite you to contact me with feedback or concerns about legislative issues that interest you. You may contact me in Frankfort at 502-564-8100, or leave a message for me, or other legislators on our toll-free message line at 800-372-7181, or by e-mail at sara.gregory@lrc.ky.gov. More information about the work of the legislature is available on the Legislative Research Commission website, www.lrc.ky.gov, and you may also watch legislative proceedings live online at www.ket.org.

What is grass tetany?

Source: Michelle Arnold, extension ruminant veterinarian

Spring in the Bluegrass is a great time of greening and warming, but it's also a time when livestock producers need to watch out for grass tetany, also called spring tetany or grass staggers. Some people also refer to it as wheat pasture poisoning, winter tetany or lactation tetany. Regardless, it's a condition caused by an abnormally low level of magnesium in the blood.

Maintenance of normal blood magnesium is completely dependent on absorption of magnesium from the diet. Deficiencies occur most often in beef and dairy cows in early lactation that graze lush pastures high in potassium and nitrogen and low in magnesium and sodium. Affected cattle often have low blood calcium concurrently. Typically grass tetany occurs when grazing ryegrass, small grains (i.e. wheat, rye) and cool season perennial grasses in late winter and early spring (February through April), although it can occur in fall-calving cows. Fast-growing spring grass is usually high in potassium and crude protein, and low in sodium and magnesium.

The earliest signs are twitching of the facial muscles, shoulder and flank. As the blood magnesium level drops, muscles stay contracted, so legs are stiff and rigid and eventually cause the cow to stagger and fall. Rapid convulsions or seizures quickly follow, with chomping of the jaws and frothy salivation.

Affected animals lie with the head arched back and the legs paddling. The heart rate may reach 150 beats per minute (normal is 60 to 80) and can often be heard without the use of a stethoscope. Respiratory rates of 60 breaths per minute and a rectal temperature as high as 105 degrees F may result from the excessive muscle activity. Animals may stand up and repeat these convulsive episodes several times before they finally die. A moderate form of grass tetany can occur with milder signs of reduced feed intake, nervousness and reduced milk production.

A veterinarian makes a diagnosis based on history, clinical signs and low magnesium levels in the blood or spinal fluid.

Animals with grass tetany need immediate veterinary treatment.

We are also seeking more youth volunteers to go to ECC every Tuesday during 2nd period intervention to facilitate Take 10!

Students who walk at AES or go to ECC will get volunteer hours to count on college applications.

Coalition meeting is April 17

How much physical activity do children need?

Children and adolescents should do 60 minutes (1 hour) or more of physical activity each day.

This may sound like a lot, but don't worry! Encourage your child to participate in activities that are age-appropriate, enjoyable and offer variety! Just make sure your child or adolescent is doing three types of physical activity:

1. Aerobic activity should make up most of your child's 60 or more minutes of physical activity each day. This can include either moderate-intensity aerobic activity, such as brisk walking, or vigorous-intensity activity, such as running. Be sure to include vigorous-intensity aerobic activity on at least three days per week.
2. Muscle strengthening- Include muscle strengthening activities, such as gymnastics or push-ups, at least three days per week as part of your child's 60 or more minutes.
3. Bone strengthening- Include bone strengthening activities, such as jumping rope or running, at least three days per week as part of your child's 60 or more minutes.

Some physical activity is better-suited for children than adolescents. For example, children do not usually need formal muscle-strengthening programs, such as lifting weights. Younger children usually strengthen their muscles when they do gymnastics, play on a jungle gym or climb trees. As children grow older and become adolescents, they may start structured weight programs. For example, they may do these types of programs along with their football or basketball team practice.

Healthy Hometown is always seeking youth volunteers to go walk at AES, with elementary students between 7:20-7:45 am.

We are also seeking more youth volunteers to go to ECC every Tuesday during 2nd period intervention to facilitate Take 10! Students who walk at AES or go to ECC will get volunteer hours to count on college applications.

Producers who want to prevent grass tetany should start supplementing feed with a high magnesium mineral at least 30 days prior to calving. Cows require 20 grams of magnesium daily or four ounces per day of a 15-percent magnesium mineral mix during the late winter and early spring. Don't let your mineral feeders get empty because consistent intake is important for prevention. UK Beef IRM mineral recommendations for free-choice supplements for grazing beef cattle include 14 percent magnesium in the complete mineral mix -- all from magnesium oxide (no dolomitic limestone or magnesium mica). At least a third of your magnesium oxide should be in the prilled form to increase palatability.

In addition to supplying supplemental magnesium, you can do several things to decrease the risk of grass tetany. These include:

1. Soil test and apply fertilizer based on soil test results and use no more potassium than recommended, since grasses are luxury consumers of potassium.
  2. Feed legumes that are high in magnesium to help offset the problem, although their growth is often limited in late winter.
  3. Feed small amounts of hay and/or grain to cattle on lush pasture during susceptible periods or limit grazing to 2-3 hours per day.
  4. Graze the less susceptible or non-lactating animals (heifers, dry cows, stocker cattle) on the higher risk pastures.
- For more information on grass tetany, contact the Clinton County Cooperative Extension Service at 606-387-5404.
- Educational programs of the Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin.*

Take care of your diabetes to keep your kidneys healthy

By the National Diabetes Education Program

If you have diabetes, it's important that you know about the link between diabetes and kidney disease, and what you can do to keep your kidneys healthy. Why do we have kidneys?

You have two kidneys, each about the size of your fist, located just below the rib cage, near your back. Their main job is to filter wastes and excess water out of your blood to make urine. Your kidneys also help control blood pressure.

What is kidney disease?

Your kidneys filter your blood through many tiny blood vessels within your kidney. If the blood vessels in your kidney are damaged, they become less and less able to do their job. This damage can cause wastes to build up in your body. This is called kidney disease.

What is the link between diabetes and kidney disease?

Kidney disease is most often caused by diabetes or high blood pressure (which many people with diabetes also have). As many as two in three people with diabetes also have high blood pressure. About one in three people with diabetes have kidney disease.

When you have uncontrolled diabetes, there is too much sugar (glucose) in your blood. This high blood sugar can damage the tiny blood vessels in your kidneys, so they have trouble filtering waste from your blood. High blood pressure also can damage these blood vessels.

Having diabetes does not mean you will get kidney disease. The better a person with diabetes keeps their blood sugar and blood pressure under control, the lower the chance of getting kidney disease.

Kidney disease usually develops over many years, and has few warning signs in the early stages; so many people with kidney disease don't know they have it. That's why it's important to manage your diabetes and your blood pressure at all times.

Can kidney disease be treated?

Yes. If you have kidney disease, you can stop it from getting worse by taking care of your diabetes and taking any needed medicines.

People with diabetes can lower their chances of having diabetes-related health problems like kidney disease by managing the ABCs of diabetes – A1C, Blood Pressure, and Cholesterol.

- A is for the A1C test. It measures your average blood sugar level over the past three months.

- B is for blood pressure. High blood pressure makes your heart work too hard.

- C is for cholesterol. Bad cholesterol, or LDL, builds up and clogs your arteries.

Ask your health care team what your A1C, blood pressure, and cholesterol numbers are; what your ABC numbers should be; and what you can do to reach your ABC goals.

Here are other things you can do to keep your kidneys healthy when you have diabetes:

- Get your blood and urine tested at least once a year to measure how well your kidneys are working.
- Be physically active.
- If you smoke, get help to quit.
- Follow what your doctor says. Your doctor may ask you to see a special doctor to help with your kidney disease. Your doctor may also tell you to eat less salt.
- Take all medicines that your doctor tells you to take – even when you feel well.

Spread the word about the link between diabetes and kidney disease. There are many things you can do to take care of your kidneys and your overall health when you have diabetes.

Cattle producers need to watch out for grass tetany

By Aimee Nielson

With spring finally arriving pastures are beginning to green up. For most cattle producers, that is a welcome event that leads to less reliance on feeding hay. But University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, Food and Environment specialists said this is also the time for producers to watch out for and prevent a condition called grass tetany in their cattle.

"Grass tetany is also known as grass staggers, lactation tetany or hypomagnesemia," said Michelle Arnold, UK extension veterinarian. "Grass tetany is a metabolic disorder caused by reduced magnesium levels in the animals' blood."

In general, the condition affects older, early lactation cows, but it can also affect dry cows, young cows and, in rare cases, growing calves.

"You should watch out for cattle that show symptoms such as nervousness, lack of coordination, muscle spasms and staggering. This may lead to convulsions, coma and death," Arnold explained. "If you suspect cattle are showing signs of grass tetany, you need to contact a veterinarian because early treatment can save animals."

While grass tetany can occur in fall and winter, it most frequently occurs in spring with young, cool-season grasses and small grains that are utilized as forage.

"This year we have the same chance of cattle having problems with grass tetany as in previous years," said Donna Amaral-Phillips, UK dairy specialist. "With the later start in grass growth this year, grass tetany may occur later in the spring, but a lot of it comes down to the weather as we proceed."

While there may not be a higher incidence of the problem this year, managing it may be more economically significant than past years.

"The high-value of beef cattle this year makes managing the risk of grass tetany even more important from an economics point of view," said Jeff Lehmkuhler, UK beef specialist. "Cull cows are currently in excess of $100 per hundredweight and feeders are around $1,000 to $1,200 per head. So, minimizing the risk is relatively inexpensive and definitely worth the cost."

Feeding magnesium or "high-mag" mineral supplements is the best way to reduce the occurrence of grass tetany. Most feed stores carry the supplements. Ideally producers need to start feeding those supplements 30 days before spring grass growth. A free-choice high mag mineral, with a target intake of 4 ounces, should contain 12 to 15 percent magnesium from magnesium oxide.

"Obviously prevention is the key; feeding magnesium supplements before cattle begin to graze early spring grass will help to avoid it altogether," Arnold said. "Response to treatment after symptoms begin is not always good and largely depends on the time between symptom onset and treatment beginning."

"Reducing the risk of grass tetany in grazing cattle involves using a balanced mineral supplement offered to lactating cattle free-choice. Producers must ensure the cattle consume the mineral product at or near the suggested intake level on the feed tag," Lehmkuhler recommended. "Producers should not use straight white salt during this time of the year, as it reduces the intake of the complete mineral product and magnesium."

He indicated the key to using free-choice products was to find a product that was palatable and to manage the mineral feeders to ensure cattle have access 100 percent of the time.

"It is a fact that magnesium absorption is dependent upon having adequate sodium in the forestomach, but this does not preclude the necessity to provide elevated magnesium in the supplement," he said.

Other management strategies, in addition to supplementing magnesium, include soil testing and applying fertilizer based on soil test results and using no more potassium than recommended. Lehmkuhler said research in Missouri has shown that phosphorus fertilization has increased plant magnesium levels in tall fescue.

Producers can also graze cattle on legumes, which are high in magnesium, although their growth is often limited in early spring.

Arnold urged producers to contact their county extension agents and local veterinarians for more information.

Time to control crabgrass is now

By Katie Pratt

While the winter may have wreaked havoc on many desirable plants, it did little to affect crabgrass, the most common weed in Kentucky lawns.

"Crabgrass is an annual weed that outcompetes desirable grasses and then dies in the fall, leaving bare spots in yards for winter weeds to fill in," said Gregg Munshaw, extension turf specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, Food and Environment. "The cycle keeps repeating itself until the turf stand gets poorer and poorer."

Munshaw said the best way to control summer annual grassy weeds, including crabgrass, is to apply a pre-emergent herbicide before the weed germinates. Now is the time to do so.

"April 15 has traditionally been the latest date to apply pre-emergent herbicides in Central Kentucky," Munshaw said. "Western Kentucky's deadline is usually a few days earlier, and Eastern Kentucky's time frame usually ends a few days later."

While spring had a cooler-than-normal start, temperatures began rebounding the week of March 31. Forsythia is a fairly reliable indicator of when crabgrass will germinate. Munshaw said forsythia in Lexington was just beginning to bud and should be in full bloom in a few days. Individuals should apply pre-emergent herbicides before the forsythia blooms begin to drop.

"Forsythia buds usually mean you have 10 to 14 days to apply a pre-emergent herbicide," Munshaw said. "If we use this as our time frame, April 15 would once again be the deadline to shoot for to make a pre-emergent herbicide application."

Individuals wanting to use herbicide should look for products containing the active ingredients dithiopyr, pendemethalin, prodiamine and bensulide. "Weed and feed" products and others containing nitrogen are not recommended for lawns with cool-season grasses, such as tall fescue and Kentucky bluegrass, during the spring or summer.

"Nitrogen encourages the growth of perennial and annual warm-season weeds to further outcompete cool-season grasses, as they grow really well during the hottest part of the year," Munshaw said. "All fertilizer on cool-season lawns should be applied in the fall."

The Civil War begins when Confederates fire upon Ft. Sumter

Fort Pillow, Tennessee attacked April 12, 1864

During the American Civil War, Major General Nathan Bedford Forrest’s Confederate raiders attack the isolated Union garrison at Fort Pillow, Tennessee, overlooking the Mississippi River. The fort, an important part of the Confederate river defense system, was captured by federal forces in 1862. Of the 500-strong Union garrison defending the fort, more than half the soldiers were African-Americans.

After an initial bombardment, General Forrest asked for the garrison’s surrender. The Union commander refused, and Forrest’s 1,500 cavalry troopers easily stormed and captured the fort, suffering only moderate casualties. However, the extremely high proportion of Union casualties--231 killed and more than 100 seriously wounded--raised questions about the Confederates’ conduct after the battle. Union survivors’ accounts, later supported by a federal investigation, concluded that African-American troops were massacred by Forrest’s men after surrendering. Southern accounts disputed these findings, and controversy over the battle continues today.

The enlistment of African-Americans into the Union army began after the enactment of the Emancipation Proclamation on January 1, 1863, and by the war’s end 180,000 African Americans had fought in the Union army and 10,000 in the navy.

Race car driver goes down with the Titanic April 15, 1912

On this day in 1912, Washington Augustus Roebling II, a 31-year-old race car engineer and driver, dies in the sinking of the RMS Titanic in the icy waters of the North Atlantic. Roebling was named for his uncle, a civil engineer who helped build the Brooklyn Bridge.

Roebling was born March 25, 1881, in Trenton, New Jersey. After studying engineering in school, he went to work in the burgeoning American auto industry. He eventually developed a race car, known as the Roebling-Planche, which took second place in the Vanderbilt Cup Race in 1910 in Savannah, Georgia. In 1912, Roebling, along with his chauffeur, his Fiat car and a friend, sailed to Europe, where they traveled to several countries. For the return trip home to America, Roebling booked a first-class cabin on the Titanic, then the world’s largest and most luxurious ocean liner, measuring 882 feet in length and tipping the scales at over 46,000 tons.

Roebling boarded the ship at Southampton, England, on April 12, 1912, for its maiden voyage. Two days later, at approximately 11:40 p.m., the Titanic struck an iceberg in the frigid waters of the North Atlantic, about 400 miles from Newfoundland. Two hours and 40 minutes after hitting the iceberg, the mangled luxury liner lay broken in pieces at the bottom of the sea, resulting in the deaths of more than 1,500 passengers and crew members.

Washington Roebling II was survived by his uncle and namesake, an engineer and a colonel in the Union Army during the Civil War who in the late 1860s had become an assistant engineer on the Brooklyn Bridge project. In 1869, he replaced his father John Roebling, who designed the bridge, as head engineer following the older man’s death. Construction of the bridge, which would link the New York City boroughs of Manhattan and Brooklyn across the East River, began in January 1870. Two years later, Washington Roebling’s ability to work was impacted by decompression sickness and his wife Emily Roebling had to take over day-to-day supervision of the project, which was successfully completed in 1883 and at more than 6,000 feet in length, was at the time the world’s longest suspension bridge. Washington Roebling died on July 21, 1926, at the age of 89.

To the parents of the Albany Graded School

It has been called to my attention that a number of boys and girls are not attending school, which they should be doing. It is best for your son and daughter to attend school and get an education, which no one can take from them. It will pay in the long run to obtain an education to prepare for positions in life which cannot be held by anyone who has not prepared themselves for same. I have done a lot of work for the good people of Clinton County. I remember one man who was about 35 years of age, and did not know his mother’s name. This is horrible. Your sons and daughters have a better chance now than I did when I attended school. Free text books are given our children up to a certain grade. There is a law on the Statute Books compelling children to attend school, but this has not been enforced in this county.

I have been called upon by the Attendance Officer to look into this. It is best as I have said for your sons and daughters to attend school. The Lord has said in His Word, “My people are destroyed by lack of knowledge.” If we disobey the laws of the Creator, we will suffer, and if we violate the laws on our Statute Books we suffer.

It is a fine for not sending your child to school. I hope that if your child has not been going to school you will send him the rest of the term. It will pay you dividends in the future. I know what an education means. It pays. I am sorry I did not attend school more than I did. I see my mistake now, but could not when growing into manhood.

I want you to send your child to school if they haven’t been going. I hate to issue a warrant for you, but when the Attendance Officer calls on me for one I will have to do my duty regardless of the best friend I have.

C. M. Brents, County Judge

Facts and figures from your local Red Cross

On May 2, 1948, we had a storm in Clinton County near Davis Chapel which destroyed a church and several buildings, such as store buildings and dwellings, etc., killing three people and injuring some 30 others.

Several people were hospitalized, some in the Maple Hill, some in Glasgow, and different places. We appealed to the National Headquarters and received help immediately. They spent exactly $10,817.10 for medical care, ambulance service, food, clothing, and shelter, repairing and building new buildings. The full amount came from the National Funds, because there were none in our treasury.

You will note they spent ten times more at our disaster than our quota is, and one-half of our quota stays in the county for local use. At the time of this disaster, the committee consisted of Carlos Langford, Perry Cross, Rev. Joe Nevius, Mrs. Eva Gibson, R. C. Reneau, and I. O. Reneau.

As of to date, we have less than one-third of our 1954 quota of $1,075.

Let’s think and give freely.
D. W. Ringley, Funds Chairman

Two arrested, fined $59 each for fishing violations

Two men who had netted 218 pounds of fish from Cumberland River, one and one-half miles below Wolf Creek Dam, have been fined $59 each on two separate charges.

The men, Alvis Flannigan and Floyd Carnes, were arrested a few days ago after conservation officers had watched them raise two 90 foot gill nets from the river. Included in the take were 18 walleyes, the largest of which weighed 16 pounds; 17 red horse; one buffalo; one white perch; and one high fin sucker.

Officers Clay Farmer, Oral Bertram, James Shepperd, Jas. Haze, Jack Jinkins, and Wildlife Supervisor William Buchanan watched the men raise the nets from a cliff high above the water. When they had placed the fish in the boat, the officers crept near the edge of the bluff and Bertram jumped into the boat. Their arrest followed. When hauled into the court they pleaded guilty.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor,

It seems to me that 1 Chronicles 4:9-10 is meant to give us what's important to know about Jabez.

Unlike the people before or after him, Jabez's family names are not given. Just his own name. Verse 9 tells us "and Jabez was more honorable than his brethren; and his mother called his name Jabez, saying, because I bare him with sorrow."

Jabez was known for being an honest and decent man. You didn't have to get it written down, signed, and witnessed when you made a deal with Jabez. His people used to say his word was his bond. You could trust and believe him. Of course, these people were probably not there when Jabez was born. His birth caused his mother to give him a name that meant "sorrow." But there's much more about Jabez in Verse 10.
